PAULY'S PERSPECTIVE

A Message from Our President Deborah Pauly, J.D.

Preparing for the Harvest: CPOC's Interactive Workshop yields fruit

We're coming off a very successful September meeting after a two-month summer hiatus. The Interactive Workshop lived up to the hype and then some. Instead of the top-down directive, one-way street communication approach we've become accustomed to experiencing in most political organizations, we wanted to hear from our members. We wanted a bottom-up approach.

We took a risk by doing something so different and it paid dividends.

This classic brainstorming session was designed to provide focus and direction for CPOC during the coming year. We nurtured a judgment-free zone, where ideas flowed, creative solutions were developed and "out-of-the box" thinking was encouraged. Open conversation and the admonishment to listen, listen, listen and allow only one conversation at a time, also lead to better relationships being formed during the facilitator-lead discussions.

Input will be used to develop our plan for 2023 with a focus on being prepared for heavy lifting in 2024. This is all about 2024! There were many great ideas that emerged and many will be pursued. We also were able to identify leaders that naturally surfaced during our time together. At the conclusion of the working dinner, each table sent a representative to present a Recap Out Brief of ideas, goals and potential projects.

I'd like to thank Susan Stivers and Cheryl Frink for bringing this idea to our board late last Spring. A special thanks to Lisa Franks and Stephanie Townsend for their work on the committee. Turn to page 5 for coverage.

If you've been to a CPOC meeting, you've heard me say "Stay and Play in Your Own Back Yard" many times. It's easy to have our attentions and energies diverted, but we can have greater influence closer to home. Our local elected officials are suppose to be accessible to us and the first line of defense against an over-reaching state or federal government. If our elected officials are ceding authority to those up the food chain, what is the point? We have communism by default if power is concentrated and wielded from on high. We need to get rid of those who don't take that charge to heart.

There have been a few changes in CPOC leadership this month. It has been suggested that James Peters should pursue regional election integrity projects with those from other counties, which is where his passions reside. He may bring back ideas to us when it is appropriate to collaborate. I have asked Susan and Cheryl to lead up our EIC team efforts on an interim basis. They are forming a more Orange County-focused committee. So far, they have started a sustained schedule of speaking at the OC Board of Supervisors as CPOC presents our concerns. There are always slots available on the schedule and they help with talking points for those members who are not as comfortable in the public speaking arena. They are meeting with the ROV's operations director early this month. They have submitted short and long-term goals for the board's consideration...so, standby.

Speaking of new leadership, it is time for CPOC to hold elections for the offices of President, Vice President for Ways and Means, Treasurer and Recording Secretary. If anyone is interested in those offices, please contact any member of the CPOC board with your interest. We particularly need a Treasurer going forward in 2023. Nancy Tucker was very gracious to stay on an additional year through 2022 to assist us during a complicated transition period. She, along with our Finance Director Carol Bowen, will be available to train and counsel the incoming treasurer. You won't have to fly solo until you feel ready. We need nominations by October 20, so that we can provide notice to the members. Voting will take place at the November meeting.

In October, we are reprising the Parade At The Podium, which was such a hit leading into the June Primary. We are focusing on local candidates for school boards, city councils and water districts. We are also happy to welcome any county or state-level candidates who want to secure CPOC's support. If you know a worthy candidate in your area, invite them to present themselves October 20. One CPOC member invited and even paid for the entry fee for her favorite candidate. I thought that was a very nice idea.

Registration is open for the Fantasy of Trees on December 3. This is our only fundraiser and keeps us going for the year. Plus, it is just loads of fun - part politics and part traditional kick-off to the Christmas and Hanukkah season with a few surprises thrown in. You and your guests will have a blast! Please see Carol Bowen for more information.

The Rule of 10!

One of the ideas that came out of the Communications table last month was The Rule of 10. Be sure to forward The Conservative Chronicle to at least 10 of your friends, family and neighbors. Ask them to forward it to 10 of their contacts.

Invite them to join you at an upcoming meeting. Let's hit 400 members by June of 2023.

Dear God,
 Help me always to persevere in the face of hardship,
 to speak up when I see injustice,
 and to choose compassion over inaction.
 Amen

Conservative Patriots of Orange County September 2022 Meeting

CPOC President Deborah Pauly, J.D., welcomes members and guests to our September 15 meeting. Deborah is holding The Epoch Times that featured an article and large photo about CPOC's August 12 protest rally at Santa Ana FBI headquarters. We peacefully demonstrated our disapproval at the FBI's raid on President Trump's Florida home. With membership rapidly growing, CPOC garners attention at events!

Tara Ricksen, candidate for Aliso Viejo City Council, spoke to us about being accountable to the people. (www.VoteTaraRicksen.com)

Members sat at a table for either a functional working group (Communications, Legal or Legislation) or an issues working group (Election Integrity, Education and Health). Brainstorming solutions and ideas, this was a working dinner, (with a delicious three-course meal). After 90-minutes, a member from each group shared comments and action items. CPOC is an action-oriented organization!

Congratulations to Sedamar Fitzgerald, right, who won $130 in 50/50. Martha Ming gives Sedamar the greenbacks.

FUNCTIONAL: Communications

Committee Chair:
Shelley Hunley

(1) RULE OF 10

Each member identifies their “targets” who they would contact with news about Orange County and assist with spreading news and taking action if needed. (target is the members creating a distribution of 10 friends/family/co workers they email/call/text with details about any “calls to action”)

Each of these 10 members will ask their targets to find 10 “targets” of their own to keep the communication simple. And so on....

(2) INFORMATION/MESSAGING

Committee Chair requests other teams (from CPOC workshop: Legal, Legislation, Health, Education, Election Integrity, Health) to email her with current news and actions to be taken in Orange County

CPOC ask all members to share ideas with Shelley about what news they feel CPOC should focus.

Members can contact Shelley directly with suggestions.

Shelley presents these ideas to the COMMUNICATIONS COMMITTEE (CC) and the team decides to move forward then creates the message:

- * message
- * who to contact
- * share with targets
- * tips

COMMUNICATION

Shelley sends message to Deborah for edits and final approval

Deborah and sends to Mary

Mary sends an email blast to all members and adds into the CPOC newsletter

Shelley shares on Social Media and with James Wallace

CCT shares with local newspapers (CCT team to compile a list of local newspapers in OC to contact)

FUNCTIONAL: Legislation

Committee Chair:

Betty Robinson

The team believes that the first step is to create a group of volunteers that will determine, with input from the CPOC membership, which matters to focus on.

The team would look to focus on related bills to be researched/monitored from various sources: the media, website of elected officials, especially those who author bills not compatible with conservative values, various ca.gov sites, suggestions from CPOC members and others.

When needed, the team would compose detailed Action Alerts, to be posted in the CPOC website. Some mechanism of feedback from members would be helpful.

Ways to support or oppose bills:

- Participate/monitor state Senate and Assembly committee hearings (now held remotely). Send emails to the committee, which then become part of the record. Register for emailed bill updates on ca.gov.
- Make phone calls or send emails to elected officials, including the governor.
- Schedule visits to elected officials' offices, also cultivate relationships while there.
- Write letters to the editor to local newspapers; cultivate relationships with their reporters.
- Post on social media sites.

ISSUE: Education

Committee Chair:

Robert Walton

Our committee met and identified the goals they think we should pursue if we are to save our kids from the leftist hold on our education curriculum. These goals include:

- Stop gender confusion
- Stop the push for transgenderism
- Stop CRT and stop the false history of the 1619 outline.

As the same time education needs to restore:

- Shop classes
- ROTC on campus
- Discipline on campus
- Return to phonics when teaching English
- Allow prayer and the Pledge of Allegiance in classrooms
- Correct and enhance special ed classes
- Reinststitute tests in order to graduate from high school or to attend college.

Finally, we need to remove common core and return to basic math.

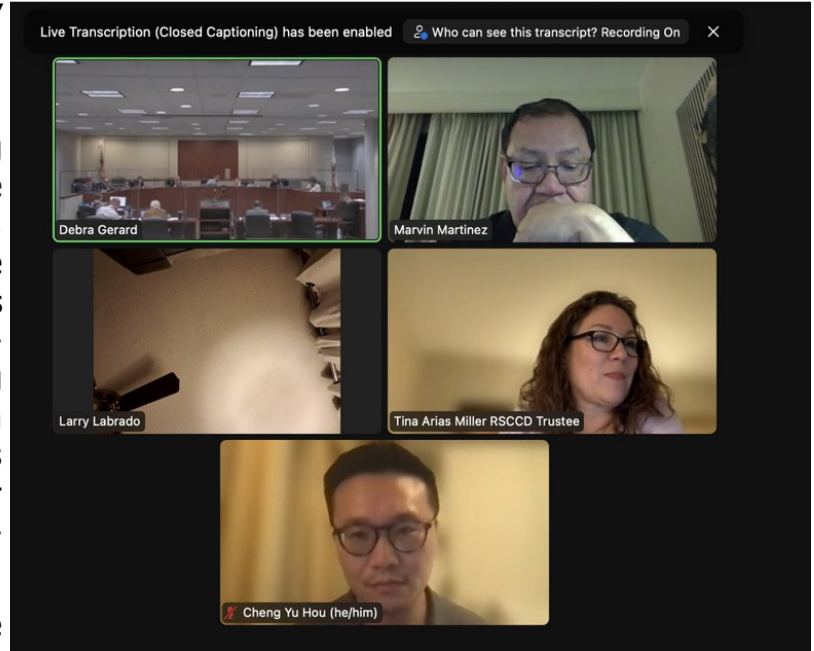

To do all this we must focus on electing parents and citizens to the school boards who really want to help the kids not indoctrinate them. Along with support for another school choice initiative, this basic step must be taken and taken now not next year. We hope CPOC will have a session someday soon that gives full focus to this battle to put education over indoctrination in our schools.

Woke at Rancho Santiago Community College

Below is a screenshot of the Rancho Santiago Community College District Board of Trustee’s September 28, 2022 meeting. Do you notice anything suspicious? To start, three of the seven trustees appeared remotely, including the board president. Why? This is not March 2020 ... this was September 2022. Why are these elected officials clinging to lockdown “plandemic” mentality?

More than that, look at the vice chancellor. Vice Chancellor of Human Resources Cheng Yu Hou, who oversees all aspects of the district's People and Culture affairs, announced his pronouns. These are the kinds of people who oversee our children’s education – and it’s insane! As CPOC President Deborah Pauly, J.D. said, “It one thing for the students, who are still just children exploring as young people often do. That is at least marginally acceptable. It is another thing entirely for a vice chancellor to legitimize such nonsense by participating in it.”

Let Rancho Santiago Community College Chancellor Marvin Martinez know what you think about the issue. When you email, be sure to share that you are a member of Conservative Patriots of Orange County. His email address is: martinez_marvin@rsccd.edu

Are you kidding me? This joker is a vice chancellor for the Rancho Santiago Communith College District. This is how he titles himself in on-line meetings of the Board.

FANTASY OF TREES

A Time for Angels

by Carol Bowen

Financial Officer & Fantasy of Trees Chairwoman

CPOC members and their guests are invited to an exclusive holiday celebration on Saturday, December 3 at our annual Fantasy of Trees. We need tree sponsors and volunteers to decorate the trees that have been provided by one of our event sponsors. If you don't like to decorate, donate $100-$150 to sponsor a tree and we will decorate it for you. This is something you can write off as an advertising expense. Your tree will be listed as a donation in the program, there will be a sign by each tree with the name of the donor, and space for you to place your business card with the gifts under the tree.

Held at the beautifully decorated Club House at Anaheim Hills Golf Club, "A Time for Angels" includes a three-course elegant lunch, no-host bar, boutique filled with unique gifts, door prizes, and an opportunity to win $500. All for just $60 per person.

Trees will be available for pick-up at the October 20 meeting.

For more information call Carol Bowen (714) 281-1335.

BECOME A MEMBER

Conservative Patriots of Orange County

by Michele Markel
Membership Chair

Dear CPOC Members,

October is the start of CPOC's 2023 membership renewal period. Due to Bidenflation, membership dues will be increased beginning on January 1, 2023. The increase will be announced after it's voted and approved by our board of directors.

BUT THERE'S GOOD NEWS—CPOC is offering its current membership rate for 2023 as long as the renewal is made before December 31, 2022. Right now you can still renew for $25 for single membership or $40 for couples. What a savings! Remember, you can renew online with your credit card at our website conservative-patriotsofoc.org. Or, if you prefer, you can print out the application from our website, fill it out and mail it to the address at the bottom of the application.

By renewing now, you are assured there will be no interruption in receiving our informative monthly newsletter Conservative Chronicles, topical press releases or important E-blasts. CPOC values you and looks forward to our growing into an even more powerful organization in 2023. Thank you!

Conflict of Interest at OC Registrar of Voters

Neal Kelley's Consulting Contract Should be Rescinded

Some of the shenanigans that takes place in Orange County government is truly astounding. You will rarely learn about it in the local (often left leaning) media. However, with the growing influence of Conservative Patriots of Orange County, the organization will regularly alert its members so we can voice and protest our disapproval at decisions that seem to go against the community's best interests.

A shocking example of elitist Orange County government mentality is the Orange County Board of Supervisors awarding a Registrar of Voters consulting contract to Neal Kelley shortly after Kelley RETIRED as the county's registrar.

Kelley retired in March 2022 after serving as registrar since 2005. Bob Page was named the new registrar. Usually when you hire someone the assumption is they have the skill set to perform the duties of the job. Obviously, that doesn't appear to be the case with Page since almost immediately after taking over the Registrar of Voters, the Board of Supervisors awarded Kelley with a TWO-YEAR consulting contract to do exactly what Page was hired to do.

You simply cannot make up this story about how these groupies take care of one another to the questionable detriment of the public. (We admit this sounds like a Babylon Bee article.)

Orange County, California is the fifth largest voting jurisdiction in the United States, serving nearly 2 million registered voters. (And who knows how many fraudulent voters?) As registrar, Kelley's official role as the County's chief election official included responsibility for conducting elections, verifying petitions, and maintaining voter records. Whether the Orange County Registrar of Voters performed those duties in a manner that would make all voters proud is up for debate.

But now there is an obvious conflict of interest between Neal Kelley's Orange County Registrar of Voters consulting gig and his new job as chairman for the just formed national "The Committee for Safe and Secure Elections." And what is the goal of this committee? Its mission statement reads:

"To protect election workers and voters against violence, threats and intimidation."

Yet, their own website admits that this so-called protection is not needed. Its website reads:

"We are unaware of physical violence against any official for their role in an election in the United States, though the risk may be growing."

Basically, Neal Kelley leads an organization that wants to protect election workers from a situation that the organization admits does NOT exist.

continued

If that wasn't disturbing enough to warrant the Board of Supervisors to rescind Kelley's consulting contract, consider who is supporting the misleading named "Committee for Safe and Secure Elections." Their leadership is a who's-who of left-wing individuals and organizations with senior directors, advisors and attorneys from some far-left groups that include:

- Protect Democracy
- The Brennan Center for Justice
- The Southern Poverty Law Center

The Brennan Center for Justice is listed as one of the funders of this new committee and it also helps fund Protect Organization. These progressive anti-freedom organizations stand together in their efforts to circumvent the U.S. Constitution and Bill of Rights and consistently go after conservative patriots.

These anti-America organizations along and committee members have been exposed over the years for their roles in writing election legislation that has opened the floodgates for fraudulent voting including mail-in balloting and drop boxes. These leftist organizations have also provided legal representation for those who want to intimidate American citizens who question the election process.

As chairman of "The Committee for Safe and Secure Elections," Neal Kelley has an obvious conflict of interest with his Orange County Registrar of Voters consulting position.

Conservative Patriots of Orange County calls on the Orange County Board of Supervisors to immediately rescind Kelley's consulting contract.

We urge all CPOC members to contact the Orange County Board of Supervisors and respectfully demand that Neal Kelley's consulting contract be rescinded. You can send your email to:

American Thinker

Hamburgers, Fries & Woke

by Robin Itzler
Proud CPOC Member

With recent “yuge” changes in commercials, Robin Itzler reached out to a leading marketing company and asked if she could sit in on a commercial planning meeting with several of advertising’s best and brightest participating. She taped the meeting to share with American Thinker readers. (This is satire.)

“Good morning. We’re here to create the special 90-second commercial that will run during the October World Series. Now, remember, our burgers are the best tasting thanks to our unique secret family sauce. Plus, we have a 99% satisfaction customer rating. Okay, any ideas for the commercial?”

“Let’s have the restaurant filled with happy customers eating their delicious burgers.”

“An average restaurant can seat 45 people so let’s make sure there are at least 20 Black customers.”

“But Blacks are just above 13% of the population.”

“Doesn’t matter. We don’t want Black Lives Matter protesting.”

“What about focusing on the mouth-watering hamburgers?”

“I think at least 10 people should be Asian.”

“No, they should be Hispanic.”

“I need at least one transgender. Will someone trade me a Black, Asian, or Hispanic for a trans?”

“People, let’s focus on the secret sauce recipe that makes the hamburgers taste so delicious!!!”

“It’s no secret that if we have one transgender, we need at least one gay.”

“What about a close-up of a couple of hamburgers?”

“What about a close-up of a couple of gays or lesbians?”

“Here’s an idea. Let’s have a Hispanic gay couple and an Asian lesbian couple.”

“I am still looking for someone to trade a Black, Asian, or Hispanic for a trans.”

“We need at least one non-binary person. Can anyone give up a Black, Hispanic, or Asian for a non-binary?”

“I’ll trade you a Hispanic for a non-binary.”

“Here’s an idea. How about a non-binary Hispanic eating a delicious Burger with his/them Asian lesbian friends?”

“Listen up folks! The burger’s secret sauce recipe goes back to 1865. It was served to Abraham Lincoln the same day the Civil War ended.”

“Wow! I did not know that!”

“Bravo—that is an incredible story!”

“There must be a lot of pride knowing that sauce helped create this multi-million-dollar company.”

“Speaking of pride, does anyone think there should be a pride flag in the restaurant?”

“We should have kids studying trans pride while eating their burgers.”

“Are those kids going to be Black, Hispanic, or Asian?”

“Let’s make them Middle Eastern. Tell wardrobe the girls wear hijabs, and the boys wear yarmulkes.”

“The secret sauce! Is anyone focusing on what makes these burgers taste so good?”

“It’s no secret we need to run this by Al Sharpton to get his blessing. We don’t want people outside the restaurant screaming, ‘No justice! No burger!’”

“Is anyone listening to me!!! This is a burger commercial! Our sauce is from a plant native to the Midwest so ...”

Continues on next page

“Oh my God! We forgot Native Americans!”

“Take one of the Jewish kids. Tell wardrobe to change the yarmulke to a headdress.”

“...Uh, we still have just one more customer role to fill.”

“People, we didn’t even mention our 99% customer satisfaction!”

“I’m satisfied we covered everyone.”

“Let me check my notes.”

“I think we’re fine.”

“What about one White male?”

“Let’s have the White guy holding a Bible and an assault rifle while wearing a Duck Dynasty T-shirt.”

“Don’t you think we should focus more on the burgers rather than the diversity of customers?”

“We have no choice. Have you seen all the other commercials?”

“There’s hardly any White people in commercials anymore. If we don’t do the same, they will call us racist.”

“Exactly who will call us racist?”

“They will call us racist. T-H-E-Y.”

“Our commercial will win an award for diversity!”

“Especially if we film this on Martha’s Vineyard.”

“I give up! After the camera pans around the room highlighting customer diversity, this leaves us with only three seconds to devote to those mouth-watering burgers.”

“Sounds good to me.”

“Me, too.”

“Will anyone even know this commercial is about our burgers?”

“This could be an award-winning commercial.”

“Just make sure you run the script by our Diversity, Inclusion, Equity & Safe Spaces Department.”
