

PAULY'S PERSPECTIVE

A Message from Our President Deborah Pauly, Esq.

Ignore the Republican Establishment's Self-Licking Credentials Mill; Cast Your Vote in Person on Election Day for 'America First' Patriots

Ballots drop February 5.

That's the insider operative's way of saying that the Registrar of Voters will begin mailing ballots on Monday, February 5 and that's when voting begins — one entire month before Election Day.

Here are some things you need to know.

You must be registered Republican to vote in Republican presidential primary. You cannot vote in the Republican Presidential Primary nor the very important races for Central Committee, Republican Party of Orange County unless you are a registered Republican.

Learn more about that at MakeOrangeCountyGreatAgain.com

The last day to re-register is February 20, but the sooner the better.

The establishment on both sides of the political aisle are promoting early voting and ballot harvesting. According to Shawn Steel, California's Republican National Committeeman, we should vote early so he doesn't have to spend as much money to get his wife re-elected to Congress. They track voters who have voted. When you have voted, your name is removed from the list and they will not send mailers, make phone calls to you or other voter contact, because you have already voted. This saves him money. As you can see, his view is that constituents are there for the pleasure and convenience of him and his wife. They self-identify as the ruling class. Be obedient.

CPOC's position is that to restore Election Integrity, we should vote on Election Day, in person and by paper ballot. The sooner you vote, the sooner they will know which votes are not vulnerable for the Steelers to steal. (Isn't it amazing how last names align sometimes?) Here's a fact: A lot of information is revealed in those last few weeks before the election. We should give careful consideration before casting our votes. That means we should not cast our votes as soon as the ballot arrives.

Candidates who are not part of the insider's club, but instead are more closely aligned with the America First movement or MAGA will be campaigning with an eye toward the actual Election Day of March 5. The swamp has arranged the process to cut-out the more grassroots-connected, servant representative — the very type of elected official who could right this sinking ship of state.

Here's an example: Current Chairman of the Orange County Republican Party Fred Whitaker has been contacting select members of the America First Coalition offering them an opportunity to be part of "his team." He has promised to help promote their election to the Central Committee of the Republican Party of Orange County. All they have to do is send him $250 to buy into his independent expenditure, be willing to crawl into bed with Jon "the Flesh-peddler" Fleishman, and sign away any right to know what other candidates or what other initiatives will also be promoted on the same slates and campaign advertising.

That's a sweet deal, especially considering that most of those Fred has contacted are just about a shoe-in to win already. They are not at all interested in sullyng their good names by diving head first into the swamp. In fact, most of these America First Coalition candidates are running for the express purpose of ridding Orange County of this sort of backroom BS and gamesmanship whereby the Republican Party seeks out and destroys good conservative Republicans. This is a fiercely loyal coalition dedicated to making Orange County great again. And they are talking to one another — often and openly — which is the only way we will ever achieve the best results for the cause of Freedom and good government.

I want to talk about two more things that you should be on the lookout for through the Primary season: Slate Mailers and the "Self-Licking Credentials Mill."

SLATES

The Independent Expenditure (IE) that Fred referenced is one form of slate mailer. Another, and probably the worse type, is one where the candidate buys space on a mailer that targets a certain demographic. There is ZERO vetting process, unless you count the 'ability to pay' as valid vetting. These slates come with names like: Republican Leadership Voter Guide, California Tax Reduction Committee, COPS, Women's Voice, Senior Advocate, Families First, Budget Watchdog, People Who Love Puppies, etc., etc. (OK, so I made up that last one, but it's just about as transparent as that.)

This leads voters to believe Women support X candidate. Seniors should support Y candidate. Law enforcement backs Z candidate. None of that is true. These candidates are not vetted based on policy positions, just ability to pay the going rate and only swamp-approved candidates are approached. Swamp-approved candidates are often those that the establishment assesses as being easily compromised and willing to "go along to get along."

Slate mailers fool a lot of people.

Continued...

You may even receive slate mailers that look like there is an official Republican Party endorsement behind them because the Republican logo is on the mailer. However, if you look closely, there may be only one star or two stars on the elephant. The official Republican Party logo has three stars, so there is technically no trademark infringement.

One of the most prolific with these mailers is attorney James Lacy. He's come out pretty hard against our good friend and fellow attorney Dr. John Eastman, so I'm guessing professional courtesy is not an issue for Mr. Lacy. Mr. Lacy is the publisher of the California Political Review (CPR), which runs hot and cold, but leans hard establishment. To be fair, CPR has some great writers producing read-worthy work there. Mr. Lacy writes that "The truth always needs to be said." I agree with him heartily on that.

The dashing James Lacy with his Ferrari

Self-Licking Credentials Mill

Finally, don't be influenced by what I have dubbed "the self-licking credentials mill." Every establishment candidate seeking elected office is trained to go out looking for endorsements from other elected officials. It's an "I'll scratch your back if you scratch mine" game with the intent of influencing naive voters. Who has the most endorsements? Sometimes it's a good idea to see exactly who has endorsed these candidates.

I find it comical because once an endorsement from one elected official to another has been secured, the campaign issues a press release boasting about that endorsement. I started tracking them in October 2019 and keeping a list as the press releases were issued. You'll recognize the names on the inset to this column.

It's an unspoken promise from one elected official to another:

We've decided it's safe to let you into the club. When you get elected, don't you dare rock our boat and try to do something foolish like put We, The People first when setting policy that impacts their lives, determining how their tax dollars should be spent or demanding that ethics dominate the process.
